

I + was a dark misty night.
I was in the batagate hills when something caught my eye.
 I could see faintly in the distance above some rocks a shiny object ominously floating in the sky. I could see it slowly getting closer and once it was above me it disappeared and two arms came out reaching for me then I woke up in a dazed state.

The rocks of the Bathgate hills date from a time more than 330 million years ago when west Lothian lay at the edge of a continent, close
