

the day bathgate burned

The year was 1552, old man bob was going for a walk in the bathgate hills with his daughter. The day started peacefully but history would remember it as the day the sky fell and the day bathgate burned. It was getting dark and bob and mary started to head home that's when the clouds parted and a ghostly green glow shined acrossing bathgate. It was brighter than the day. Then millions of small green lights fired from from the sky the green orbs started to crash into bathgate when they did they started huge fires. When bob saw this he dropped to his knees and began to pray hoping to warn of this demonic invasion. Mary begged her father to run but he wouldn't listen. So mary ran she ran and ran. she hid in a cave waiting for the explosions to stop. When they she awoke to find that the lites had left and that the world was in ruin. she never saw her father again.
